All-School Reunion Celebrates Alumnae

Several hundred Women of Mercy attended the All-School Reunion on Sunday, June 3. A highlight of the day was the induction of the class of 1968 into the Golden Guild. Also introduced to the crowd and making remarks was Pat O'Neill Sauerma n '65, the 2018 Distinguished Woman of Mercy Alumna Award Recipient.

Fr. Kevin Schneider, S. J. presided at Mass and reminded the audience of all the great gifts that have come to those who are part of the Mercy community.

"But don't forget that not only is it important to express gratitude but to thank the Lord and ask for more," he added.

During brunch, the crowd heard from Sauerma n who talked about her life's journey and how Mercy changed her and taught her to listen to the Holy Spirit.

She reflected on a prayer she learned at the school that reminds her each day "to learn from the past, see tomorrow and be present today."

Many Mercy classes gathered at the event and used this opportunity as a chance to get together and reminisce.

Mercy Class of 2018

Outstanding Seniors were Hannah Fenton and Annika Muse. The annual award winners were chosen by the senior class, faculty and administration and “represent the class in an outstanding way.”

Fenton, this year’s Student Council President, has been on Student Council for four years, and has been honored as Student Council’s outstanding member for two years. As a Mercy athlete, she has played volleyball for four years, serving as team captain this year, and participated on the tennis team for three years. A member of the National Honor Society (NHS), she is an academic tutor, a Student Ambassador and a member of Golden Girls (the spirit club). Possessing great initiative, she founded and now serves as president of the Optimism Club, a group that performs random acts of kindness in the school. In the academic arena, she made the Nebraska School Activities Association Academic All-State and Rivers City Conference Academic All-Conference teams. She also made the Omaha World-Herald All Academic Program Honorable Mention and received Mercy’s Presidential Award for Academic Excellence (students who have a GPA of greater than 3.5 and have a 25 or above on their ACT). Fenton’s service portfolio includes volunteering at Mercy events, local ministries, with JDRF and at the school's summer camps. She recently spent her spring break on a service trip to Misericordia, a community of care, operated by the Sisters of Mercy in Chicago. She will be attending Regis University receiving the Board of Trustees Scholarship, Science Distinction Award, Regis Award and Catholic High School Award.

Annika Muse has been a member of Student Council for two years, NHS, served as a Student Ambassador and was sophomore class president. The student-athlete plays both soccer and volleyball, is on the Core Team of Operations Others and is a member of FBLA. She made the Nebraska School Activities Association Academic All-State and Rivers City Conference Academic

All-Conference teams. She also made the Omaha World-Herald All-Academic Program Honorable Mention and received Mercy's Presidential Award for Academic Excellence. Muse also recently spent her spring break on a service trip to Misericordia, a community of care operated by the Sisters of Mercy, in Chicago. Planning to attend Creighton University next fall, she has received scholarships from five schools.

• This year's valedictorian was Gabriela Caito who ranked first academically, is a class officer, academic tutor and on the tennis team. She is a member of the National Honor Society (NHS), Prom Court, Mock Trial, Multicultural Club, was the social media editor last semester for the school and also ran track in her earlier years. Annika Muse,

At this year's commencement, speeches were given by both the salutatorian and valedictorian. The following are excerpts from their remarks.

Salutatorian Annika Muse expressed admiration for her welcoming and inclusive class. She said, "One of the most important parts of these last few years, in my eyes, is that we have gotten to pursue passions alongside people who are just as passionate as we are. Although we might have our own groups, we are lucky enough to have the chance to be in a diverse community that allows everyone to give their own opinions and be respected for them."

"One of the most important parts of these last few years, in my eyes, is that we have gotten to pursue passions alongside people who are just as passionate as we are..."

Gabriela Caito, this year's valedictorian, reminded the audience that "being thankful is about so much more than simply saying thank you. "It is about living a life of purpose inspired by the people, places and events we are grateful for and turning that gratitude into action. It is about being driven to make a difference, as we were taught to do in our four years at Mercy."

"...being thankful is about so much more than simply saying thank you. It is about living a life of purpose inspired by the people, places and events we are grateful for..."

By living gratitude in action, she said, "One day when we look back we will remember that our dreams came true not because we wished them to happen but because we made them happen."

Mercy Fueled a Passion for Social Justice

“What stays with me from my years at Mercy was the degree to which my leadership potential was nurtured. At the same time, the school fostered my personal spirituality and my interest in social justice,” said Claudia Brock ’12.

Those opportunities and her awareness eventually led to a position at the Grassroots Mobilization at NETWORK Lobby in Washington, D.C. Her focus is to reach out to members and grassroots contacts to work with them on advocating for policies motivated by principles of Catholic Social Justice.

“When I came to Mercy I was incredibly shy and did not enjoy speaking in front of other people. But Mercy staff and teachers foster such a warm, welcoming, and encouraging environment that it was not too long before I was giving my entire class announcements during joint homeroom,” she said.

In selecting which high school she wanted to attend, Claudia knew she wanted something smaller than a public middle school and thought going to an all-girls school would be exciting. To make up her mind, she attended Mercy Open Houses and also shadowed.

“Every time I was at Mercy I was struck by how happy the girls were to be with one another. I loved watching hands be unashamedly raised in the classroom, friends joking around with one another, and girls speaking passionately about the clubs and activities they were in,” she added.

“Every time I was at Mercy I was struck by how happy the girls were to be with one another.”

While at Mercy she was junior and senior class president and was involved with the speech team, Student Ambassadors, National Honor Society, Justice and Peace Club, the Kairos retreats, and participated in a service trip to Belize during the spring break of her junior year.

“From my first Mercy Day as a student I have been inspired by the example of Catherine McAuley and aim to embody her woman-centric approach to issues of justice in all of my work. The theology classes I took, especially Social Justice my senior year, sparked my interest in liberation theology. Today I am keenly aware of how my Catholic faith forms my values and my role in justice work,” she said.

After graduating from Mercy in 2012, she earned a degree in Journalism and a minor in Justice and Peace studies from Creighton University. She decided her senior year that she wanted to spend a year of service while living in intentional community. She was drawn to the Mercy Volunteer Corps and worked at Mercy Center in the South Bronx, which is an organization that welcomes and educates immigrant mothers and their children. While there she supported many youth programs and led an after-school program for 3rd and 4th graders.

“While I appreciated being in a role of accompaniment, throughout the year I felt called to become more engaged in public policy during a time when our most marginalized brothers and sisters are living in great fear,” she added.

“...I felt called to become more engaged in public policy during a time when our most marginalized brothers and sisters are living in great fear.”

That calling led her to NETWORK. She especially liked working on high school or college student group trainings on how to have a successful lobby visit before going to Capitol Hill to meet with members of Congress. She also loves to go to rallies on The Hill and see members of the Sisters of Mercy Institute Justice Team there.

“My time as a Mercy High student fostered my passion for social justice causes and I have benefitted from seeing examples of Mercy lived out on Capitol Hill,” she said.

In the fall, Claudia will be attending the University of Nebraska at Lincoln College of Law.

She has maintained many long-lasting friendships through Mercy and has witnessed how each member of her group of friends has become a Woman of Mercy making their respective communities better.

“I can say without a doubt that I would not be who I am today had I attended any other high school. I have been emboldened by my student experiences, teachers, and classmates turned friends to be an advocate for myself and others. My years in non-profit and congressional work have taught me that the world needs more Women of Mercy being shining lamps, giving light to all around us- as per the instructions of Catherine McAuley,” she said.

New Staff Join Mercy

Four new staff members are joining the faculty in the 2018-2019 school year.

Two positions—an English as a Second Language Specialist (ESL) and an additional Guidance Counselor—were made possible by generous donations and are designed to enhance the immediate and post-graduate academic goals of students. The current Guidance Counselor position is also being filled. Counselor, Georgina Morse, is retiring after 25 years. Finally, a new Business and Technology faculty member will be replacing Dustin Hahn.

Mercy's inclusive and growing student enrollment mirrors the ethnic and socio-economic profile of the Omaha metro area. With that increased diversity, especially in the Latina community, the ESL Specialist will strategically work with the students, teachers, and parents to ensure success for their future.

Katherine Davis '05 will serve as Mercy's new ESL specialist. She holds endorsements and certifications from the University of Nebraska at Omaha -Teacher Academy Program and has been an educator for 11 years. She has served in educator positions in La Vista, Neb. as well as Valparaiso, Chile and Jaipur, India. Most recently she was a Spanish teacher at Benson High School. Her community outreach work includes a year with OneWorld Community Health and as a member of the National Civilian Community Corps in Maryland. A graduate of the College of Saint Benedict, she holds degrees in Political Science and Hispanic Studies.

Josah Driml Powers '98 and Laura Powers will serve as the school's Guidance Counselors.

Mercy's enrollment continues to grow and the need for counselors to help students is vital.

Josah has worked in advising, counseling and student leadership development primarily on the college level. She is currently the Pre-Health Advisor for the Health Careers Resource Center at University of Nebraska at Omaha. She has also worked in Student Development Services at Nebraska Methodist and Southern Illinois University. Josah earned a Bachelor of Arts in Communication with a minor in Psychology from St. Louis University. She also holds a Master's in Education from Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, Ill.

A member of the National Academic Advising Association since 2012, she was also active in the National Student Personnel Administrators for five years. Recognized with the Staff of the Year Award twice, she is also very involved in St. Wenceslaus Church volunteer activities.

Laura Powers has served as a College Counselor at Millard South High School since 2003. During that time, she coordinated the counseling center's website, and served on the University of Nebraska at Lincoln Counselor Advisory Committee. She has also been a Social Studies teacher in the Bellevue Public Schools as well as a teacher in Ralston Public Schools.

A graduate of UNO she holds a Bachelor of Arts in Psychology and a Master of Science in Secondary Counseling.

Cara Carson has been named to the faculty for the 2018-19 school year teaching Business and Technology. She comes to Mercy after teaching and serving as the freshmen and reserve volleyball coach at Roncalli High School for several years.

Cara spent her college undergraduate years at Southwest Minnesota State University in Marshall, Minn.

where she graduated Summa Cum Laude in Management with a minor in Marketing and received numerous academic and volleyball honors. She went on to earn her Master of Science in Secondary Education and Teaching Certificate from the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

Driml to Lead Advancement at Mercy

“Nate brings to this position a strong development, alumni relations, event management, writing and communications background and an equally important understanding of our mission and values,” said Mercy High School President, Sr. Delores Hannon, RSM.

Nate Driml has been appointed Vice President of Advancement at Mercy High School. Driml will be responsible for planning and executing a comprehensive advancement program for the school to include fundraising and alumnae engagement. He most recently served as the Director of Alumni Relations for the College of Nursing, School of Dentistry, as well as the Heider College of Business at Creighton University. Prior to that, he was the Alumni and Development Operations Director at Creighton Preparatory School for nearly 10 years.

While at Creighton, he was responsible for growing and managing the fundraising prospect portfolios for his assigned school and colleges to maximize charitable support.

An alum of Creighton Prep, he received his undergraduate degree from the University of Nebraska at Lincoln in Journalism. He is working toward his Master's Degree in Organizational Leadership at Creighton.

Nate has plenty of connections to Mercy as his mother, Marriane Safranek Driml '65, aunts Barbara Safranek Kratky dec. SM '55, and Rita Safranek Schneider '58, as well as his sister Josah Driml Powers '98, are all Women of Mercy. In fact, Josah will be one of the school's new Guidance Counselors this fall.

“Nate brings to this position a strong development, alumni relations, event management, writing and communications background and an equally important understanding of our mission and values,” said Mercy High School President, Sr. Delores Hannon, RSM.

He is a current advisory board member of the Ignatian Volunteer Corps and a former member of the Jesuit Partnership Council of Omaha. He and his wife Janet are active at St. Stephen the Martyr Parish where their three children currently attend school.

Jim Pogge, former Vice President for Advancement, has moved to Phoenix, Arizona.

May Crowning Tradition

One of the most beloved traditions at Mercy High School is May Crowning.

This ceremony honors Mary by selecting a May Queen, a senior girl who exemplifies the qualities of Mary, and having her crown Mary's statue with a circlet of flowers. The classes recites a decade of the rosary and seniors wear their cap and gowns for the first time

Madeline Elsasser was this year's Queen, and is part of a family legacy at Mercy. Her mother, Aryn Vacanti, graduated in 1998 and was a member of May Court her freshmen year, and her grandmother, Teresa Vancura Vacanti graduated in 1973. She is the oldest of three children; her younger sister, Emma was a freshman this year at Mercy, and her younger brother, attends Holy Cross.

Alumna Appointed Principal

Mercy alumna, mom, administrator, and teacher, Kristi Walters Wessling '88, was appointed Mercy's new Principal effective July 1, 2018. Kristi, the former Assistant Principal for Academics, has been a teacher and administrator for 23 years and has deep ties with the school.

During her time at Mercy, Kristi has taught or chaired the math and business departments, was a sponsor for Student Council and member of the Curriculum Committee. In 2015, she chaired the AdvancED Accreditation team conducting surveys, analyzing results and preparing data for the external accreditation group report. Mercy exceeded the AdvancED Network Averages in every category. She also helped introduce the Understanding by Design philosophy for lesson planning to faculty members.

She holds a Master's Degree in Secondary School Administration from Creighton University and a Bachelor of Science in Education from the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

"I am especially pleased with Kristi's strong commitment to Mercy Catholic education and her institutional knowledge of the school which will be invaluable as our momentum moves the school forward," said President, Sr. Delores Hannon, RSM.

A Mercy mom, her daughters Caitlyn Wessling Milone, M. D. '08 and Rebecca '13 graduated from the school. Her youngest daughter, Abigail, is an incoming freshman. Kristi is also on the School Board at St. Pius/St. Leo School and its Education Committee. She has been a volunteer volleyball coach there, as well as at the YMCA.

When asked about her appointment Kristi said, "As principal, I will continue to pursue academic excellence, a strong Catholic identity and faith development, and the promotion of the values and charisms of the Sisters of Mercy for all our students."
